FREE SELF-CHECK · 10 MINUTES

Where is your practice right now?

Most healers running their own practice are at one of five stages. None of them is wrong, and every one has a next step. This self-check will help you see where you are today, and what that next step might be.

How to use it

1. Find a quiet ten minutes.
2. Click every box where the statement feels true for you. Don't think too long.
3. Each stage adds up its own Total, and the last page shows the stage that fits you best.
4. It's very common to see yourself in more than one stage.

1 Thinking about starting

- ☐ I have a gift or a training, but I haven't started charging for it yet.
- ☐ I worry whether people would really pay me.
- ☐ I'm not sure where my first clients would come from.

Total ☐

YOUR NEXT STEP

Start with the people already coming to you for help. Ask for feedback on how the person felt after your session. What had they come for? Was that achieved?

Then ask, “What might you pay for a session like that?” Then you understand what value you deliver, and you have a price point to begin from.

On a free call, we’ll work out your first price together. Book your free call →

2 A small, loyal circle of clients

- [ ] Most of my clients come through word of mouth.
- [ ] My clients love what I do, but my income hasn't grown for a while.
- [ ] I haven't reviewed my prices for over a year.

Total ____

YOUR NEXT STEP

Thank your loyal clients and ask each one to tell a friend about you. Give your clients a discounted price on their next session for everyone they send your way.

Look at your pricing and do some research to see what others charge in your area. Then use that figure plus an uplift.

On a free call, we'll set a new price and a simple "tell a friend" offer for your clients. Book your free call →

3 Built it, waiting for them to come

- [ ] I've set up a website, a room or a social media page, but enquiries are few.
- [ ] I hoped people would find me once I was ready.
- [ ] I feel uncomfortable talking about what I offer.

Total ____

YOUR NEXT STEP

Choose one place where the people you help already gather, online or in person. We need to go 'fishing' where our clients are 'swimming'. Show up there every week and share something of value to them. You define your value as how you make your clients feel.

Have you told family and friends about your service, website and social media? Ask them for potential contacts.

Be bold! What you offer is a terrific service, and it helps to improve people's lives.

On a free call, we'll find the place where your clients gather, and what to share there. Book your free call →

4 Two years in, still not covering costs

- [ ] I've been practising for two years or more.
- [ ] After rent, travel, laundry, oils and creams, there's very little left.
- [ ] I sometimes wonder whether I should give up.

Total ☐

YOUR NEXT STEP

Write down every cost for one month, so you know your true numbers. Also write down how many sessions you delivered in that month and what you were paid. We often find that when the outgoings are measured against income, it's a negative number.

The answer is usually to encourage clients to return and refer. Get them to return by offering packages of several sessions. Get them to refer by offering a discount on their next session.

On a free call, I'll help you set up your first package of sessions.

5 Worn out from trading time for money

- [ ] My diary is full, but I'm exhausted.
- [ ] If I stop working, the money stops.
- [ ] I give so much that there's little left for me.

Total ☐

YOUR NEXT STEP

Think "one to many". A group session, a workshop or a course lets you help more people without adding more hours to your week. Think about teaching your skills, as well as delivering them.

Look at what you are charging. See stage 1 to work out the value you deliver. Then "walk in your value". Think about how much you are changing lives, think about a fair price for a brilliant service, and raise your prices.

Working 35 hours a week for a good hourly rate is WAY better than working 70 hours a week for a poor hourly rate. You're worth it: raise your fees.

On a free call, we'll look at what you could teach, and what to charge for it.

FROM A CLIENT

"I met Peter when we both took a class in hypnotherapy for Past Life Regression offered via Zoom by the Edgar Cayce A.R.E. Institute. We were paired several times during the class... After the class ended... we started meeting weekly on Zoom, discussing ways to expand my reach to others based on his long business experience.

I live in Dover, Delaware, USA, and Peter lives in England. The fact that we have never 'shared air' in the same room didn't hinder our interactions, or limit our success working together.

Peter's blend of experience with helping others grow a business plan, coupled with his spiritual connection, and ability to teach others is a potent and valuable combination."
